

June Bridal Events Give Way to July Vacations

With a suddenness that was almost breath-taking, the solemn strains of Lohengrin's Wedding March which signaled the long procession of June brides, were silenced by the roar of giant firecrackers heralding the great holiday. The final week of June had its full share of brides in misty white, and of showers and parties in their honor, and indications are that the parties will continue, although July is not a favorite wedding month in California. Most of the engaged young people who do not choose to wed in June, seem to like to postpone their nuptials until August, a favorite vacation month in the southland, and combine their wedding trip with the annual vacation.

Safe and Sane
"Safe and Sane Fourth" propaganda is very evidently taking effect in the public mind, and while yesterday was a gala day with virtually every Orange County family, especially those with young people who enjoy ocean sports, yet the shooting of firecrackers seemed to be sporadic, and there was a marked lack of the usual noisy celebration.

Practically everyone in the city sought the beaches, there to enjoy swimming and sand sports, to say nothing of picnic lunches. The scene along the water front was colorful and charming, with big umbrellas, bright-hued bathing suits, and the popular beach pajamas in an amazing variety of color and design, all adding to the brilliant display.

Week's Parties
The week preceding the Fourth, had its full share of enjoyable social functions, most of the parties having some happy young bride as their incentive. Of these, Mrs. Dana Lamb was very popular, the recent announcement of the December wedding of Miss Ethel Stuart and Dana Lamb, adding a romantic light to affairs given in her honor.

In Hays Home
Mr. and Mrs. Gene Hays, themselves a more recently wedded young couple than the Lambs, were hosts at an unusually charming evening party, given in their home at 508 Eastside avenue. Mrs. Hays was Miss Mae Sexton, and at the time of their wedding in early May, the young people deferred an extended honeymoon until in June when they spent a delightful interval amidst the historical scenes of New Orleans. This trip gave them their decorative theme for the unusual party with which they complimented Mr. and Mrs. Lamb.

Gift Shower
A second event of the week honoring Mrs. Lamb, was a miscellaneous shower at which two popular young matrons entertained, Mrs. Dee Cook and Mrs. Robert Stewart. Their hospitality was extended at the Cook home, just completed at 1016 North Olive street, and guests were keenly interested in an inspection of the pretty place. Bridge during the evening, was secondary in interest to the shower of gifts bestowed on the young honoree.

Post-Nuptial Event
Mrs. Leonard Coffman, who was Miss Marjorie Crawford, of Tustin, was another of the summer brides to be made honoree at a post-nuptial party and shower, at which Miss Alice Prather was hostess. Miss Prather was privileged to greet her friends in the attractive home of her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Millard Foster on Mountain View drive. Mrs. Coffman received a collection of pretty and useful articles to be used and enjoyed in her new home.

Gives Luncheon
Members of the Day Nursery board of Ebell society, found the luncheon given by their leader, Mrs. Clyde Bach, a delightful departure from their usual business sessions, and thoroughly enjoyed the hospitality of her home at 822 Garfield street. Pleasant too was the little visit they were privileged to have with Mrs. Bach's mother, Mrs. G. B. Lamm, who, in invalidism for the past few years, has in no wise dimmed her cheerful spirit and her interest in what is going on in the world.

For Mrs. Keeler
That regret which Santa Anans feel at losing Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Keeler as residents, is being expressed in many ways before the departure of this interesting family for their new home in Los Angeles. Mrs. Frank Lansdown was the most recent hostess at an event complimenting Mrs. Keeler, when members of the congregation of the Church of the Messiah were invited to the Lansdown home on Grant avenue. A handsome hand-bag was presented to the honoree as an expression of the regard in which she is held by her friends here, and she has also been complimented at handkerchief showers.

For Eastern Guest
Mrs. Jennie Crawford, who arrived recently from Washington, D. C., for an extended visit in the home of her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Nalle, of South Birch street, was honor guest at a pretty luncheon given by Mrs. R. E. Coulter in her home, 424 South Birch street.

Patio Party
Another eastern guest, Mrs. Earl Lippincott, of Oakland, Ill., who is visiting her cousin, Mrs. Blanche Brown, of South Main street, was incentive for a party of much charm, given by Mrs. Brown and

MRS. WALTER MILBRAT
Mrs. Walter Milbrat, who was Miss LaVerne Harrell, is one of Santa Ana's most talented young singers, and has a contralto voice of singular richness and power. She renounced all plans for a professional career when she married, as she was receiving much success in light opera work, having sung in "The Student Prince" and in "Bambino," both in the Southland and in San Francisco.

Nuptials Are Staged In Most Unusual Setting

"Some place in California," is the indefinite manner in which Mr. and Mrs. Walter Milbrat announced their honeymoon destination following the charming but informal wedding of late June. Mrs. Milbrat was Miss LaVerne Harrell, one of the talented and lovely daughters of Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Harrell, 116 West Seventeenth street.

The young people had arranged for a formal home wedding, but learning in time of plans for an unromantic interruption of their contemplated honeymoon, decided to forestall those plans. So when they went to the Edward W. Cochems studio for bridal pictures, they quietly summoned their pastor, the Rev. J. G. Hurst, of Huntington Beach, and had the solemn rites performed in the studio, where all details were completed with the exception of the bridal attendants.

Mr. and Mrs. Milbrat will make their home in Huntington Beach temporarily, upon returning from their northern honeymoon, but will eventually come to Santa Ana where a host of warm friends will welcome them. At present they are motoring through the north, intending to go to Seattle and other Washington points.

World Travelers Will Sail This Month

Mr. and Mrs. Mark B. Lacy and their little daughter, Billie, who are leaving some time this month for an extended sea voyage which will keep them away from the shores of their native land for an indefinite length of time, are staying with their friends of long standing, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Clayton, 808 South Garvey street, until their sailing date.

Mr. and Mrs. Lacy had expected to leave Santa Ana early in June, and made their plans accordingly, vacating their attractive home at 706 South Broadway, that it might be turned over to Robert Fernandez and his bride, just home from an eastern honeymoon trip. In the meantime the sailing date was advanced, so the Lacy's resigned their home to the newly-weds, planning to seek temporary quarters here in the city until they should leave to board the ship sailing for foreign parts. Mr. and Mrs. Clayton were happy at the opportunity of having an intimate visit from these close friends, and asked them to be their guests for the interval.

Many of the past month's most delightful social affairs have been planned as compliments to this popular little family group, and Mrs. Lacy will carry with her on her travels many happy thoughts and remembrances of a host of home friends.

Buckingham's Are Dinner Incentives

A final farewell party was given to Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Buckingham, who left yesterday to make their home in Oregon, when Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Ryan entertained in their home at 806 South Ross street, Thursday evening with a charmingly appointed dinner in their honor.

The table was centered with a colorful bouquet of red, white and blue flowers, flanked by gleaming red tapers. Favors were candy firecrackers. Following the dinner hour, the little group of intimate friends made the most of the few hours they had left to enjoy the presence of Mr. and Mrs. Buckingham.

The Buckingham's have been residents of this city for some time, and have made their home at 929 West Chestnut street.

Colorful Luncheon Was Given for Klean Kut Members Recently

Mrs. R. E. Couch was hostess at a colorful 1 o'clock luncheon Thursday, when she entertained members of the Klean Kut club in her home on Pomona street. The appetizing repast was served at the card tables, covered with white cloths and centered with slender red candles. Little candies in patriotic colors filled the red nut cups at each place. The motif was further expressed in the gay bouquets combining red, white, and blue blossoms which were placed at attractive intervals throughout the rooms.

In the bridge games which followed the luncheon hour, Mrs. E. C. Read scored high, Mrs. H. W. Turner, second, and Mrs. Eugene Reif, low. Sharing in the lovely prizes which were awarded the winners, was Mrs. Howard McIlvain, who received a special guest gift. Other guests were Mrs. Nat Neff and Mrs. R. B. Hill.

Members present other than the hostess, Mrs. R. E. Couch, were Mesdames E. C. Read, A. W. Stanford, L. D. Sargent, Eugene Reif, R. C. Edwards, Lee Boyles, H. W. Turner, and John Turton.

Wedding Anniversary Is Celebrated in Buena Park

Mr. and Mrs. James E. Stones, of Artesia, celebrated their sixtieth wedding anniversary in the home of their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. George Trapp, of Western avenue, Buena Park, Friday, when over 50 relatives and close friends joined in the gala event.

The myriad of flowers and shrubs in the Trapp gardens formed a lovely setting for the wedding ceremony, which was performed under the canopy of a pink bell. The bride of 60 years ago wore the wedding veil of her granddaughter, Mrs. Fred Winters of Buena Park, and carried a shower bouquet of Cecil Brunner roses, orange blossoms and delphinium. She was given in marriage in this charming ceremony by her brother, Henry Bingham, of Morenci, Ariz., and was attended by her two sisters, Mrs. Byrd Schooley and Mrs. Geo. Vaughan, of Los Angeles. The bridegroom was attended by his brother, Moron Stones, of their great-grandchildren, Mildred and Howard Stewart, of Buena Park, served as flower girl and ring bearer. The wedding ring was engraved July 4, 1870, and was the present of Mr. and Mrs. George Trapp.

Music during the ceremony was furnished by Miss Roselyn Reese of San Bernardino, grandniece of the bridegroom, John Keir, of Hueneme Beach, and Moroni Stones, Robert Quinnell of Los Angeles, read the service, which was followed by the Lord's prayer in unison. A banquet was served on long tables under an arbor of graceful pepper hedges, decorations being bowls of pink and yellow dahlias and pink tapers.

The afternoon was spent in music, old time dances, and interesting accounts of the early life of Mr. Stones. He spent many years among the Digger Indians, and gave Indian folk songs and dances, and counted in Chinese. He and his brother, Moroni Stones, entertained with singing "Sweet Betsy From Pike," and the brother showed exceptional talent in playing the violin, although he is over 80 years of age.

Many beautiful and useful gifts were presented to the honored couple. Guests included Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Garrison and daughter, April, of Palms; Mr. and Mrs. G. N. Reese and daughter, Roselyn, of San Bernardino; George Stones and son, Irvin; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bingham and Mrs. J. E. Stones; and Herbert W. Stones, of Artesia; Mr. and Mrs. Lee Lynn and Moroni Stones, of Simi; Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Wilson, of Bakersfield, Henry Bingham and son, Clifton, of Morenci, Ariz.; Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Robinson, of Ontario; Mrs. Grace Brinton and daughter, Margaret, of Norwalk; Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Trapp, Mrs. Ella Vaughan, Mildred Shinski, Mr. and Mrs. Byrd H. Schooley, Burdett M. Grant, Robert Quinnell and Mrs. Myrtle Gesner, of Los Angeles; Charles E. Trapp and son, and Mrs. C. R. French and children LeRoy and Hazel, of Santa Paula; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Woodford and family, Mrs. Paul Burleson and daughter, Shirley, and Mr. and Mrs. J. V. Richardson, of Los Angeles; Emily J. Burroughs, of Cuyucos, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Winters, Mrs. M. M. Stewart and children, Mildred and Howard, and Mr. and Mrs. George Trapp of Buena Park.

Group of Four Holds
Merry Evening Party
Miss Louise Proctor was hostess at a charmingly informal bridge party last evening, when she entertained in the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Proctor, 607 East Pine Street. Just one table of cards was in session, and the two couples had a most enjoyable time in vying with each other for honors.

Late in the evening, the little group had a watermelon supper, after which they motored to Balboa for dancing.

Those present were the Misses Dorothy Dungan and Louise Proctor, and Edna Lauderbach and Myron Dungan, when she will

AN EARLY JUNE BRIDE

Berkeley, where she so recently completed her course at the University of California, will be the home, for the summer at least, of Mrs. Albert E. Peterson, formerly Miss Vera May Smith of this city, whose marriage to Mr. Peterson was one of the loveliest of the early June events. Mrs. Peterson is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James B. Smith, and it was in her girlhood home at 1234 South Ross street that the charming wedding was staged on Thursday afternoon, June 5. Mr. Peterson is an alumnus of Lawrence college at Appleton, Wis., where he holds a fellowship in zoology. He is now teaching in the summer school at the university in Berkeley. His bride completed her high school and junior college work in this city before entering the university, where she majored in public health work.

YOU and your Friends

Mr. and Mrs. David Jellis, Mr. and Mrs. James Scudder and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Delmer of this city, are spending the week-end at Lake Arrowhead.

Mrs. E. C. McKinstry of South Hickory street, is spending some time with her daughters in Los Angeles. Miss Helen McKinstry, who has been visiting her mother, is also visiting in Los Angeles.

Mr. and Mrs. G. J. Daley and daughter and son, Miss Mildred Daley and Stanton Daley, former residents of Santa Ana, have returned for the summer, and are now at 1807 North Main street.

Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Herr and daughters, the Misses Claire and Vivian Herr, spent yesterday with relatives in Long Beach. During the afternoon, the party attended the A. A. U. Swimming meet at Recreation park.

Miss Elisabeth Hurd, of 1520 West Washington avenue, returned yesterday from Asilomar camp, where she has been spending several weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Lamb and daughters, the Misses Alice and Lois Lamb, of 530 South Sycamore street, accompanied by Mrs. H. C. Collins, attended the rodeo at Huntington Beach yesterday, and stayed for the evening's fire work performance.

Miss Patricia Kennedy, of 520 South Van Ness avenue, accompanied by Miss Evelyn Harding, of 711 South Broadway, spent the day yesterday, with the former's relatives from Pasadena, at Balboa Beach.

Miss Nettie Crutchfield of Pasadena, is spending the week with her mother, Mrs. J. R. Shields, 819 West Sixth street.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Dunlap and family of 2148 North Main street, motored yesterday to Glendora to visit Mr. Dunlap's mother, Mrs. M. L. Dunlap and then to Altadena to visit Mrs. Dunlap's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Waterspoon. The fireworks display at Huntington Beach was enjoyed in the evening.

Miss Alyce Majors, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Majors of 2412 Heliotrope Drive, left Thursday for Long Beach, where she will

Happy Family Gathering Is Surprise Event Of Holiday

Surprising in happy manner Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Forney and their daughters and son, the Misses Virginia and June Forney and David Forney, members of their family circle and close friends assembled yesterday at their home on Mountain View Drive, Tustin, with well-filled luncheon baskets in readiness to spend a happy day. Mr. and Mrs. Forney and family returned on Thursday from a three weeks' vacation trip up the Pacific coast as far as Vancouver, and the event was a "welcome home" gesture on the part of their friends.

Following a delectable dinner, with chicken as the main course, served at tables bearing French bouquets, the older members of the group enjoyed bridge and 500, while the younger people adjourned to a nearby beach.

Those present included Mr. and Mrs. H. Rasmussen of Santa Ana, and daughter, Mrs. T. E. Forney, of Los Angeles, Mr. and Mrs. John Shivers, of Santa Ana; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Rogers, Charles O'Harrow, of Orange; Dr. and Mrs. E. P. O'Harrow, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Silver and daughter, Miss Wilma Silver, all of Tustin, and the members of the family, Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Forney, the Misses June and Virginia, and David Forney.

Borchards Are Hosts At Al Fresco Dinner

The spacious grounds of the Charles E. Borchard home on Williams street provided a lovely setting for an al fresco dinner last evening, when Mr. and Mrs. Borchard were hosts at a welter bake held near the big fireplace at the rear of the home.

Following a most enjoyable dinner hour, and when dusk had begun to become evident, the program for the evening was begun, and a beautiful display of fireworks took place. Joining the little group to take part in the entertainment were Mrs. James Columblini and daughters, Nellie, Rosa and Allen.

Those present for the merry evening with the hosts, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Borchard, were Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Haidu and daughter, Betty, of Los Angeles, and the Misses Anne and Gretchen Lieberman, their nephews, Don and Jack Lieberman, and Miss Betty DeWard.

CHURCH SOCIETIES

Baptist Women's Society
Mrs. E. A. Bell as president of the Women's society of the First Baptist church, directed the members in their usual all day meeting Wednesday. Garments and hospital supplies were made ready to fill stations in India and China.

Contributions were made to the relief equipment of Miss Viola Hill who sails for China August 1.

Mrs. David Meyer and her committee had decorated the tables for the covered dish luncheon with red, white and blue flowers.

Messages of thanks were read from local and foreign recipients of the society's giving.

The topic of the day was "A Vision of Citizenship," with devotionals by Mrs. Minnie Holmes. The selected scripture reading was "Righteousness exalted a nation."

Mrs. Albert Hill reviewed Laubach's book "Seven Thousand Emeralds."

A giant stalked about with a great globe on his head; letting it fall it broke into many pieces, and was the Philippines. From this myth she built up their history. Each wave of immigration that came inhabited another island and accounts for the races and languages. After years of oppression, their freedom in United States occupation, and now the dangers in commercial exploitation were discussed. Mrs. Linna Davis reviewed the Baptist denomination's work on the islands for Christianizing of the people.

Mrs. Minnie Holmes presented a stereoscopic lecture, revealing natural beauties of the islands, showing native and modern housing of the people, and striking contrasts of young people before and after Christianization. The singing of "America the Beautiful," with Harry Evan Owings at the piano, closed the program.

Spurgeon Memorial
The all-day meeting of the Women's Society of the Spurgeon Memorial church, was held in the home of Mrs. W. B. Blakeman, 825 North Ross street, Wednesday, July 2. Bible study was presented by Mrs. Thacker, following a delicious pot luck luncheon, served at noon. During the afternoon, several enjoyable readings were given by Miss Octavia Goldsworthy.

provement after a major operation which was performed recently at Santa Ana Valley hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Blakeman and daughter, Mary, and son Tom, 825 North Ross street, will leave Monday for Forest Home, where they will remain for one week.

MRS. FRANK MCATEER
Mrs. McAteer, who was Miss Ruth Hough of Fullerton, will sail in September for Burmah, India, where the young people will make their home for the next three years.

Mr. and Mrs. McAteer Will Sail Soon For India

One of the prettiest events of recent date in La Habra, was the reception given by Mrs. Burt Hough of North Hiatt street, as a compliment to her daughter, Mrs. Frank McAteer, who with Mr. McAteer just returned from a honeymoon spent in and near San Francisco.

Scores of relatives and friends of the popular young bride were present to greet her and express their interest in her plans. For Mr. and Mrs. McAteer will soon exchange the familiar rolling hills of La Habra, for the strangely exotic scenery of India, where Mr. McAteer is stationed at Burmah with one of the big American oil companies operating there. They will sail in September and will make their home in Burmah for the next three years.

Mrs. McAteer was Miss Ruth Hough, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Burt Hough, and her wedding to the young oil man, home on his triennial vacation, was an event of June 25 in the First Baptist church of Long Beach. The ceremony crowned a romance beginning over three years ago, before Mr. McAteer left for his first trip to India.

Civil War Veterans Share Picnic With Shiloh Circle

An old-fashioned basket luncheon reminiscent of days long ago when a picnic in the woods was much anticipated, and the modest young maidens prepared a delectable and varied repast for their chivalrous swains, was that of yesterday, when Shiloh Circle, Ladies of the G. A. R., held a noon-day picnic in Birch Park. Guests of the day were members of Sedgewick Post, G. A. R.

The jolly group had chosen yesterday for their picnic because of the national holiday, and also because this was the date for the regular meeting of the Circle. When baskets had been emptied, and all had partaken of the variety of home foods, the Ladies of the G. A. R., and the veterans who were present, spent a happy afternoon full of interesting conversation. At 3 o'clock they disbanded, taking with them memories of a very happy and informal get-together.

Among the veterans who were present were Hiram Cleveland, Daniel Holbrook, M. Hungerford, G. W. Ross of Garden Grove, G. W. Spencer, P. J. Spencer and M. N. Fuller.

Legion Auxiliary Has Meeting of Much Interest

American Legion auxiliary members met Thursday night in Legion hall where three new members initiated were Mrs. Mary Croal, a gold star mother, Mrs. Evelyn Imhoff, and Miss Helen Juden, a junior member.

Alternate delegates to the state convention were selected. They were Mesdames Emma Penn, Ruth Jellis, Alma Maier, Jean Thorman, Edith Schanle, Zola Maag, Rosetta Battey, Julia Hyde, Flossie Winters and Miss Gladys Young.

Among future activities will be picnic supper to be held at Bixby park, Long Beach, on Thursday, July 17. The twenty-first district caucus will be held in Tustin on Tuesday, July 8, the meeting to follow a 12:30 luncheon. Miss Ethel March of Upland will be in charge. The fifth area caucus will be held in San Clemente on July 20. The 21st district will depict Japan in the Parade of All Nations at the convention in Sacramento.

Mrs. Fannie Reeves, in charge of welfare and hospitalization work, asked that all members and friends remember the annual fruit and jelly drive and put up some extra fruit and jelly for our disabled veterans in San Fernando hospital. Mrs. Ethel Marsh, 21st committee woman of Upland was present at the meeting.

MISS GAIL BIDDLEMAN

One of Fullerton's most popular young business women, Miss Gail M. Biddleman, has just announced her engagement to Leonard England of 440 East Commonwealth avenue, Fullerton, a clerk in the post office of that city. Miss Biddleman, who is the daughter of Mrs. Nellie Biddleman of the California hotel, Fullerton, has been the object of many friendly attentions since announcing her betrothal, and has been complimented at a series of enjoyable showers and parties. No wedding date has yet been set, according to the young people.

Farewell Affairs
Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Buckingham, of 229 West Chestnut avenue, were surprised on the eve of their departure for their new home in Portland, by a bevy of friends who arrived unexpectedly with everything in readiness for an evening of bridge. A handkerchief shower for Mrs. Buckingham was the chief feature of the evening.

For Miss Miller
When Miss Velma Miller and her fiancé, E. M. Sundquist, accepted the invitation of Miss Miller's sorority sister, Mrs. Howard Stiles of Burbank, to an informal evening, they didn't realize that it was to bring together a group of charming young married people, whose ranks they will so shortly join. Bridge was played, and to the honor guests, Miss Miller and Mr. Sundquist, was presented a piece of electrical equipment for their future home.

Miss Lowell Honored
Miss Virginia Lowell, charming fiancée of Dr. Roy Dickson, son of Mr. and Mrs. George R. Dickson, has been incentive for several pretty pre-nuptial parties, the latest having been that given by Mrs. James W. Dickson in the charming setting afforded by the patio of McFarland's cafe, Fullerton. Miss Lowell is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jo Lowell, 924 Lowell street, and her brother, Kenneth Lowell, was married on June 27, to Miss Mary E. Noble, of Portland. The newlyweds are expected to arrive in the southland in time for Miss Lowell's marriage to Mr. Dickson.

Wedded in Chapel
Of the week's weddings, none was lovelier than that of Miss Josephine Waggener and Robert Munro, held in the chapel of the First M. E. church, where the charm of finish and appointments, was heightened by massed blossoms. Many wedding guests later attended the reception given in the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Waggener, 416 Garfield street.

Colyn-Bruntz Nuptials
Few brides are privileged to take their wedding vows before their own fathers, but that was the happy experience of Miss Violet K. Colyn, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. L. Colyn, 1701 West Sixth street, when she was wedded to George C. Bruntz, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Bruntz sr., of Nebraska. The Rev. Mr. Colyn is a retired minister of the Presbyterian church, and conducted a very beautiful and impressive ceremony which found its setting in the Colyn home.

Southern Honeymoon
Attracting the interest of a host of warm friends of Mrs. Mabel Rockwell, was her marriage in Aqua Caliente, to Elmer E. Webster, a Southern banker and orange grower. Mr. and Mrs. Webster have been spending their honeymoon in the Southland, but are now in Long Beach where they are staying for the present, at the Pacific Coast club. Santa friends are hoping that they will eventually make their home in this city, where Mrs. Webster founded the Mabel Rockwell Studio of Dancings.

Costa Mesa

Hold Lawn Party
Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cox entertained a group of friends in their home on Hamilton street July 4 with a lawn party. Guests present were Mr. and Mrs. Irwin Harner and Mr. and Mrs. Homer Davis, of Orange; Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Fidler of San Diego; Mr. and Mrs. Victor Myers of Garden Grove; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Vaughn and sons, Phillip and Donald; Martha Lillian and John Robert Cox.

Observe Anniversary
A silver wedding anniversary was celebrated at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Wallace, of Twentieth street, Sunday, in honor of Mrs. Wallace's sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Myers, of Arlington.

All table decorations were in silver and the honor guests received many beautiful gifts. Besides the above mentioned, the following were included: Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Hutchinson and sons, of Long Beach, and Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Hutchinson of Garden Grove.

Bridge Enjoyed
The W. B. Rochester home on Eighteenth street was the meeting place of the Thursday Afternoon club this week. Following a one o'clock luncheon bridge was played with Mrs. M. J. Hostettler making high score and Mrs. Frank P. Wells second high.

Other guests present were Mrs. R. W. Wallace, Mrs. George Brenner, Mrs. Rex Turner, Mrs. W. K. Craig and Mrs. Carl May of Lynnwood.

Entertains Corps
Mrs. Lettie Dudek of Balboa street entertained the members and friends of the Women's Relief Corps Wednesday afternoon. This was a silver tea for the benefit of the corps. Mrs. Dudek and Mrs. Ida Clark staged a humorous skit, entitled "The Movie Review." The performers impersonated well-known movie stars.

Refreshments were served to the many guests.

Five prizes were awarded couples, and the winners were as follows: First prize, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Wilson; second, Mr. and Mrs. William Kettler; third, Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Andrews; fourth, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Drake; fifth, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Sinesco.

Mr. and Mrs. Gothard's invited guests included Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Benning, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Severson, of Huntington Beach, and Mrs. A. C. Drake, of Yorba Linda; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Macdonald, of La Habra; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Woodington, Mr. and Mrs. Emil Kettler, Mr. and Mrs. William Kettler, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Ruoff, of Springdale; Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Kuhry, of Whittier; Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Sinesco, of Santa Ana; Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Andrews, of Long Beach.

Miss Dalma Stinson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Stinson, is one of the marathoners at the dance which has been going on in Huntington Beach since June 25.

John Hurdy arrived home Tuesday night from the north where the family went a few weeks ago. He purchased a new car, driving that home and bringing his small son, John. Mrs. Hurdy and the girls will return later, driving their other car, and will be accompanied by a relative of Mrs. Hurdy.

J. A. Murdy and daughter, Miss Ella Murdy, and their guest, A. C. Murdy, brother of J. A. Murdy, motored to Long Beach on Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Murdy returned Tuesday from a honeymoon trip through the national parks and northern California, and are preparing to move to their home in Midway City.

The Rev. W. Archie Matson, newly appointed pastor of the Wintersburg Methodist church, and his family moved Wednesday from Coronado, where the Rev. Mr. Matson has been pastor, taking possession of the local parsonage, which was vacated the same day.

by ANNE AUSTIN AUTHOR OF "THE AVENGING PARROT" "THE BLACK PIGEON," ETC.

CHAPTER XLVI

Bonnie Dundee had cheerfully endured a good deal of kidding from his uncle, Police Commissioner O'Brien, and from his chief, Captain Strawn, because of his use of a parrot as a "Watson," when he felt the need of an audience for his summing up of a case.

"I've tried talking aloud to myself, but I for one, Cap'n, is an ideal audience, for while he sometimes laughs at me, he can't waste my time by arguing or telling me I'm a fool," he answered them.

Now, after five hours of sleep, to clear his brain of all speculations and conclusions—worthless now, in the light of his new discoveries—he sat with the parrot's case before him, his thick sheet of typewritten notes ready for reference. He had been talking steadily for 10 minutes, telling the parrot just how and when Doris Matthews had died, and Cap'n had listened, head cocked inquiringly, beady eyes bright with interest—or so Dundee chose to believe.

"Now, my dear Watson," that is the crime which you and I must try to solve," he summed up. "But behind that crime lies another, which did not come off. Our primary problem, therefore, is to find the person who plotted Mrs. Berkeley's death by wood alcohol poisoning, but who was forced, by fear, to murder Doris Matthews instead. Is that clear?"

"Perfume!" Cap'n croaked suddenly, proud of the new addition to his vocabulary.

"Exactly!" Dundee grinned. "Someone transferred more than two ounces of deadly wood alcohol from the lighter fountain in Mrs. Berkeley's sitting-room, to the flask of Fleur d'Amour which Seymour Crosby presented to his hostess Friday evening. And was caught in the act by Doris Matthews."

"Perfume!" Cap'n repeated and flapped his wings excitedly.

"Exactly—again!" his master applauded. "Where is the perfume which Mrs. Berkeley's would-be murderer had to remove about two and a half ounces of perfume before putting that amount of wood alcohol into the bottle."

"Now, it is not at all likely that the surplus perfume was poured down the drain pipe of Mrs. Berkeley's bathroom basin, for the very good reason that Mrs. Berkeley would have been almost sure to smell it when she came up to bed. Therefore it seems logical to suppose that the surplus perfume was poured into another bottle—and what more logical than a perfume bottle to hold perfume?"

"Mrs. Berkeley's would-be murderer probably counted on several days elapsing before the victim drank the Fleur d'Amour, since she had another new bottle of perfume on hand, as the plotter could have seen by glancing at her dressing table—or could have known already."

"Now—why the choice of Fleur d'Amour instead of the new bottle of department store perfume? To that Cap'n turned rapidly about as his perch three times, then croaked "Good night! Good night!"

"Good night! Why, I've just been by the Rev. and Mrs. Harry I. Smith."

Mr. and Mrs. Wellington DeLaverne and family are spending a week camping at Huntington Beach.

Mrs. J. H. Pryor, who is president of the H. E. O. of the First Christian church of Huntington Beach, will be in charge of the stand where the class is serving sandwiches, coffee and pie over the holiday. The stand is located in the room adjoining the Warner hardware store in Huntington Beach.

John Stinson, who has been at Florence, Ariz., since Easter, has returned home.

Mr. Peavey, who has been ill in the home of his brother at Huntington Beach for several weeks, is still confined to his bed.

George Nichols is looking forward to a visit from his sister, Mrs. A. D. Barnes, who leaves Texas July 5 to come to visit her relatives. This is Mrs. Barnes' first trip to California.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ulrich and daughter, Miss Cleo Ulrich, left Thursday for Lake Elsinore to remain over the week end.

Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Thiebaud are entertaining Mrs. Thiebaud's son and family, who motored down from the north to spend a few days with them.

Misfortune has been the lot every week of members of the Henry Friend family, who have moved from the Winters place into one of the Don McMillen houses in Wintersburg. The day they moved their son, Roy Friend, who had not been feeling well for several days, was declared to have appendicitis, by the Huntington Beach physician. He was rushed to the hospital at once, and at that time another call came from Imperial valley for Mrs. Friend's daughter-in-law and daughter to go to the other two sons of Mrs. Friend, Vero and Melvin Woods, Melvin Woods having suffered a stroke. The temperature stood at 125 degrees in the shade. When the women reached Imperial they found he had wandered away and could not be found. A search was instituted by officers and friends and toward morning the sick man walked in almost exhausted. While searching for Melvin Woods, Leo Woods suffered a very severe burn

You see, my dear Watson, if the wood alcohol causing Mrs. Berkeley's death were traced to perfume she had drunk, it would be much safer for the poisoner if the perfume had come from France, rather than from a local department store.

"If my reasoning is correct so far, the would-be poisoner expected to have ample leisure in which to dispose of that incriminating surplus of Fleur d'Amour before Mrs. Berkeley's death. But consider the problem which confronted the poisoner when he—or she—bought let's say 'he' for the sake of convenience—was caught in the act by Doris Matthews. We know there was a struggle, that Doris was pushed so violently against the bathroom mirror that the smudged print of her rouged mouth was left—as one of our few clues to what took place.

"Then what happens? Doris succeeds in wresting the flask of poisoned perfume from the would-be murderer, flees with it—taking time to get her coat or the key to the back door. Her goal is the summerhouse, where she believes she will find her fiancé, Arnold, waiting for her.

"But the poisoner knows Arnold is not there, that he is driving the Benjamin Smiths home. So he pursues Doris. But he does not leave behind him in Mrs. Berkeley's bathroom, the bottle containing the surplus Fleur d'Amour. And he does not take it with him when he follows Doris to the summerhouse. If he had, he would have cast it into the lake, along with the fragments of the crystal flask. Those fragments have been fitted together, Captain Strawn tells me, and they form one complete crystal flask. No other bottle was found on the bottom of the lake.

"Therefore he stopped long enough on his way out of the house in pursuit of Doris, to put the bottle away—most probably in his own room."

Dundee paused for a long minute, frowning. Then he cried triumphantly:

"Of course, Watson! What an idiot I've been! Shoes! No wonder we couldn't smell Fleur d'Amour when we sniffed at the shoes we knew had been worn Friday night! The poisoner was behind Doris! She fled first, and the poisoner had ample opportunity to observe how silent her flight was—in her rubber-soled, rubber-heeled shoes. Not even when she ran down the uncarpeted backstairs did she make any noise. But in ordinary shoes the poisoner could not hope to be so noiseless. He stopped and changed to shoes as silent as the girl's. It would have taken less than a minute and undoubtedly the poisoner knew, either from Doris herself or from deduction, what she meant to do. Doris would not find Arnold in the summerhouse, but she would wait for a short time at least, expecting him to arrive any minute. Oh, yes, the poisoner had time to chance his shoes—and he did!"

He was silent again for so long that Cap'n turned rapidly about as his perch three times, then croaked "Good night! Good night!"

He was silent again, passing all possible suspects in review, putting them, one by one, to the test of his fifth conclusion. Finally he spoke aloud again, very solemnly:

"So far as we knew, Cap'n, there were only two people in this house whom Doris could possibly have hated—judging from her letter to her sister and from all the evidence we have in hand. Those two people were Mrs. Berkeley and Seymour Crosby—provided it was Seymour Crosby whom Doris knew or suspected to be responsible, directly or indirectly, for Phyllis Crosby's death. Let us say she only suspected, until she saw him plotting the death of another woman. Her suspicion would have become a certainty then. She would have shown no mercy. If she had come upon anyone else than her beloved 'Miss Phyllis' the killer, preparing to poison a woman she disliked, would she not have been easy to move with protestations of repentance and promises not to repeat the attempt?—I think so. I do not intend to think so, if I am any judge at all of Doris Matthews' character!"

Disconcertingly, the parrot chuckled throatily.

"Oh, I shan't go half-cooked, that's what you mean by your ridiculous laughter," Dundee retorted.

"I'm going to consider every single possibility....But before I forget! Doris's murderer returned to his room and polished his tennis shoes, to cover up the perfume. But there was another problem confronting him: What to do with his bottle of Fleur d'Amour?"

He brooded for several minutes, while the parrot drooped sleepily on his perch. What would he do? When at last the answer came he uttered so sharp a cry of triumph that the bird protested with one of the oaths he had learned from his mischievous old mistress, Mrs. Emma Hogarth.

It was nearly one o'clock when Dundee concluded his long monologue to the parrot and covered the long-suffering bird's case. Weary, but triumphant, he unlocked the tower room, descended the steep stairs to the third floor, unlocked that door and was about to step down into the hall when he found that the door was pushing against something soft but unyielding.

"Gigi!" he whispered angrily. And then he saw that she was asleep, a woolly bathrobe wrapped about her gay silk pajamas, her curly brown head sunk upon her knees.

He stooped and gathered her up into his arms. She grunted, sighed, then the topaz eyes flew wide.

"I thought you'd never come out, Bonnie," she murmured. Then anger routed sleep. "I've been waiting here to tell you what a cad I think you are! Tricking Daddy into admitting that he came to my room Friday night and that I—I told him—" She hesitated, obviously not sure just how much Dundee knew.

"That you told him you hated your mother and wanted him to divorce her?" Dundee finished the sentence for her, so confidently that she tumbled into the trap.

"I didn't mean it," Gigi whimpered. "I was just so awfully sore at Abbie because she slapped me... I guess he told you what else I said."

"No, Gigi, but you're going to tell me now," Dundee said gently, holding her small body close against his heart. "And in exchange I'm going to tell you that you're not to worry any more—your father did not try to poison your mother, then kill poor Doris to keep her from telling."

gun. Dundee reproached the bird. "Let's see now, where we stand. Noisless shoes....Bedroom slippers, or—tennis shoes? But I've stooped and snooped and sniffed in every clothes closet in the house and I've not caught a single whiff of Fleur d'Amour, except from Cinderella's gold slippers."

"Let's follow the murderer back to the house from the summerhouse, after his ghastly work there had been done. It is almost certain that the perfume splashed upon his shoes when the bottle broke. Of course it splashed upon his clothes, too, but that didn't matter, since Gigi had helpfully anointed everyone with perfume earlier in the evening. But perfume on soft shoes....Now, how could he remove it most successfully?....By washing the shoes? Not so good. Perfume is devilish persistent stuff."

Very earnestly he stared into the parrot's beady eye, then suddenly he smote the table with triumphant fist.

"Tennis shoes—white shoe polish!" he cried. "Easy and quick. Freshly polished tennis shoes would cause no comment....Well, that's that, unless I've been barking up the wrong tree....Now, let's see what we know about this would-be poisoner."

"First: He knows that Mrs. Berkeley is a perfume addict."

"Second: He knows that Mrs. Berkeley has a lighter fountain filled with wood alcohol in her sitting-room."

"Third: He has what seems to him good cause to wish Mrs. Berkeley dead."

"Fourth: He knew Arnold could not meet Doris in the summerhouse; therefore he must have been present when Mrs. Berkeley ordered the car."

"Fifth: He was someone to whose appeal for mercy Doris Matthews, a kind-hearted girl, must have turned a deaf ear. Otherwise her murder would not have been necessary."

He was silent again, passing all possible suspects in review, putting them, one by one, to the test of his fifth conclusion. Finally he spoke aloud again, very solemnly:

"So far as we knew, Cap'n, there were only two people in this house whom Doris could possibly have hated—judging from her letter to her sister and from all the evidence we have in hand. Young People Are Home From Catalina Island Honeymoon

When Miss Florence Danielson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest W. Danielson of North Main street, became the bride of Alfred J. Fessman, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Fessman of 1050 West Chestnut avenue, on Sunday, June 22, it was at a church ceremony of much stately beauty held in the First M. E. church of Orange at 8:30 p. m.

The bride was girlishly lovely in her gown of sheer white net fashioned with a very long and very full skirt. Instead of a veil she wore a close-fitting lace braided hat, and a delicate touch of color was given her costume by her arm clusters of bride roses combined with shell tinted gladioluses.

Miss Nellie Colombini, as maid of honor, wore peach chiffon and carried pink rosebuds. Miss Helen Kroener in orchid taffeta and carrying pink roses, completed the bride's attendants, while Herbert Wayne Hill of Montebello Park, served Mr. Fessman as best man, and Ray Griset was usher.

Following the ceremony conducted by the Rev. Walter B. Cole, nearly half a hundred close friends and relatives were entertained at a reception in the home of the bride's parents, an attractive

STORY BY HAL COCHRAN—PICTURES BY KING

The stopping place was quite a sight to look upon in broad daylight. 'Twas where all tourists stopped to eat and take a little rest. All caravans that passed this way would stop and pass some time away. The folks who ran it were in funny Persian costumes dressed.

Up to a table all the bunch soon gathered for a bit of lunch. "We'll all take milk," said Scouty, "and a sandwich, if you please. In fact, I could eat more than one. Oh, isn't this a lot of fun? We're rather tired from riding. Now we all can rest in ease."

And so they ate and shortly it had every Tiny feeling fit. The Travel Man said, "How about some fruit? Sounds good to me." Great plates of grapes were then brought out and they were fine without a doubt. Soon Clowny said, "Oh, gracious! I'm as filled as I can be."

They hung around the spot about an hour and then they started out again upon their journey. Every Tinymite was set to take in all the sights around as they were carried 'cross the ground. The Travel Man said, "We'll soon reach a town you'll like, I'll bet."

Then to a group of trees they came. Said Clowny, "Say! Is that a game that bunch of men are playing? Look! They're climbing 'way up high." And, sure enough, the men, with ease, were climbing all around the trees. The Travel Man said, "I'll explain about it, bye and bye."

They watched the men a little while. The Travel Man, then, with a smile, said, "They are getting silk-worms. Don't they do their task with ease. They use the silk in lots of ways. That's why they work here days and days. I don't suppose you Tinies knew that silk-worms cling to trees."

Missing Letter Links

RULES

1. In playing golf on the Missing Letter Links the object is to change one word to another in a given number of strokes which is par. For example, to go from TEE to PIN in three strokes sounds hard but isn't: TEE-TIE-PIE-PIN. It's probably more difficult on a real course.
2. Change but one letter at a time and be sure the word you have used is one in good usage.
3. The order of the letters cannot be changed.

"If a tree once starts to suffer from over-irrigation, it has no chance of recovery proportionate to the regular amount of water supplied at each irrigation," C. H. Hays. "A tree when over-watered loses root activity in the contact wet soil. This, in turn, causes slow leaf growth and causes leaf drop. The lack of leaf surface reduces the ability of the tree to use the water which they normally use and so the damage continues and grows worse until a radical change is made in the watering practice. To avoid this condition it is the best policy to carefully examine the soil with a finger or a soil tube where the roots are feeding."

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 5. — To acquaint officials and poultrymen of foreign countries with the extent and nature of the poultry industry of the United States, the U. S. department of agriculture has issued a 74-page booklet as a supplement to its exhibit at the Fourth World's Poultry congress at London, July 22 to 31. The booklet deals with production, marketing and utilization of poultry and eggs in this country, and, by way of gastronomic appeal, includes recipes for roast turkey and Maryland fried chicken.

The edition is 5,000 copies, practically all of which are for foreign distribution. Most of the information appearing in the booklet is contained in reports, bulletins and other publications issued by the department for the benefit of poultrymen and the general public in the United States.

Boarding houses, Y. M. C. A.'s, Y. W. C. A.'s, Turkish baths, clubs, tourist camps, etc., are not included in this census.
The bureau of the census also reports that questionnaires were sent to 1455 hotels in the state of California, and to a total of 25,000 hotels in the nation.

KREG PROGRAM WILL INCLUDE OLD MELODIES

Old, familiar melodies will be presented tonight over KREG by Jessie Johnson, who will be on the air with a 30-minute program from 7:30 to 8 p. m.
Other outstanding features of the program will be Pop and Les, with mandolin and harmonica music, from 9 to 9:30 p. m.; Ed Tooles, banjo player, from 6:45 to 7 p. m.; Theodore Wickersheim, pianist, who will be heard from 7:15 to 7:30 p. m.; and Katherine Place, contralto, who will entertain from 6:15 to 6:45 p. m.

W. J. McCordia and his six children will be on the air from 8:30 to 9 p. m. McCordia is a candidate for sheriff.
The children's hour will begin at 4 p. m. and will continue until 5 p. m., with Inez Moore. Dr. Dean's "Health" program will follow, from 6 to 6:15 p. m. Following the programs by Katherine Place, contralto, and Ed Tooles, banjoist, news of the day will be read from 7 to 7:15 p. m.
The programs by Theodore Wickersheim, pianist, and Jessie Johnson, with old, familiar melodies, will be followed by a half hour of entertainment provided by the Doc and Ray Vibra Banjo Duo, from 8 to 8:30 p. m.

McCordia and his six children will broadcast from 8:30 to 9 p. m. Pop and Les, mandolin and harmonica artists, entertaining from 9 to 9:30 p. m., will be followed by the American contest broadcast by remote control from Huntington Beach, from 9:30 to 10 p. m.

JONES TO PRACTICE ON U. S. OPEN LINKS

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., July 5.—With two British golfing cronies already in his possession, Bobby Jones arrived today to start the conquest for this year's National open golf title at Interlachen golf course.
Bobby arrived at 9 a. m., from Chicago. He expected to go over the course for the first time today in preparation for the open, which will start next Thursday.

Don't

walk around in the hot sun trying to find an apartment... be cool... look over the Rental Ads on this page for your selection of the available vacancies. Then with paper under arm... go out and see them. You'll save time, worry and money by using this twentieth century way of locating an apartment.

HAGEN ANXIOUS TO WIN GOLF CLASSIC

won both of these before this man Jones took up the matter of golf in a really serious way. I think it is. It may be pertinent, too, that while Hagen has won all of four British championships since 1922, he won a total of none in 1926 and 1927. Why? Largely because golf doesn't make allowances for more than one winner and this man Jones was giving the British racket a play in those years.
In brief, Hagen is only the man who used to be the greatest golfer in the world. Yet I don't think many will deny the affirmation that he alone has the genius to meet Jones as man to man with more than a nominal chance of living to nurture the incident and so, if he is as good and as keen and as rested as they say he is, the purpose of drama at the national open championship, starting Thursday, will be distinctly the gainier for the fact.

A GREAT STUNT

Two men in an airplane piloted their ship three weeks, two days, one hour, forty-one minutes and eighteen seconds, and they drove a mileage of approximately 41,475 miles.

Now that it has been done, we congratulate the participants and the builders of the plane, which had previously been flown some 70,000 miles. We agree that it is a wonderful thing, but we hope that this is the last of these endurance tests of men. If they want to try out machines, changing men and keeping the engine running, there is no reason why they can't settle to earth, put other men in and go on with their engine tests. However, the idea of limiting the number of men to two, huddled together in a little pit, with one necessarily flying while the other, during the latter part of the time, is forced to look after all needed repairs, getting but little sleep, and their quarters like a pigsty, does not lend itself to commendation of common sense.

There is value in testing out the material and mechanism of an engine, but there is no particular value in men going through such a performance. It was a stunt as far as they were concerned, and we are glad to note that one of them said, "never again for him."

The hours in the air and the previous record of the engine will go far to establish the elements of safety in airplaning. We believe during the war after 18 hours of flying the engines were taken out of the planes and thoroughly overhauled, being rebored, etc. This engine went more than thirty times the distance usually permitted by the army airplanes after being in operation for more than two years. At the same time we are not anxious to ride in a plane that has had no overhauling or reconditioning for a matter of three weeks steady running.

The Atlanta negro who was given 10 days for stealing a ham probably considered that the unkindest cut of all.

FURTHER STUDY OF CRIME

The action by Congress in the last few days of restoring the $250,000 to the appropriation bill, permitting the president's crime commission to continue its investigations not alone of the prohibition conditions, but those conditions relating to all crime, we believe will receive the approval of the people of the country generally.

If there is any subject that needs investigation, analysis and a complete understanding by the people of the United States, it is the general disrespect for law which characterizes our whole national life. It has been said, and said truly that if America has a single heritage to give to the world—a single reason for her existence—it is that her history and institutions are the exponents of liberty, but liberty under law. There is little doubt but what the "liberty" part of it prevails to the n-th degree, but the "under the law" part is being overlooked and forgotten. The facts themselves, the reason for the facts, and the calling of the nation to a realization of the facts is a prime duty.

The prophets of our country, whether they be in the pulpit, on the judge's bench, or in the chief executive's chair should, with a mighty voice, appeal to our people to address themselves to this terrible condition. The prophets of old would call for sackcloth and ashes, days of humiliation, fasting, and of prayer, and if ever a nation needed some heroic methods by which to rivet the mind of the people upon a condition which should be changed, that time is now.

CHANGING THEATER HOUR

Frank Gillmore, president of the Actor's Equity Association has suggested that on one evening a week plays in New York begin at seven or seven-fifteen to accommodate suburbanites who could reach their homes in time for a full night's rest if the plays were over by about 9:30. Several theater managers have pronounced the plan at least worth a trial in an effort to attract people back to the theater.

The seven o'clock moving picture performance is an attraction to many people over the eight-fifteen or eight-thirty theater performance. The American people are hard working and it is very probable have been much influenced in their choice of the movie over the theater by the fact that by attending a performance of the former they can still have a full night's rest and be ready for work in the morning.

In the agonies of competition between the two it is surprising that none have thought of this feature before.

MUSIC DURING VACATION

A Chicago music house is taking advantage of the long vacation to interest children in music. Of course, there is financial reward for the music house if it can interest hundreds of children in music, but it also would be a wonderful thing for the children to have their interest in music aroused at an early age. There is no easier way of doing it, either, than in attracting many of them at one time. They are naturally gregarious. Summertime is no particular reason for doing nothing, for when one is absorbed in an undertaking he forgets the heat.

The publishers keep us interested in books, and make particular appeal to the children. This plan to interest children in music of various kinds may meet with equal success and we may have a nation of musicians yet.

TWO CRIMINALS FOUND GUILTY

That there are some elements of justice in the courts in Los Angeles county is evidenced by the conviction of Morris Lavine and Miss Leontine Johnson for attempted extortion by threatening certain ones with exposure in matters relating to the Julian case.

Certain facts came into the hands of Miss Johnson as secretary to S. C. Lewis, and in partnership with Lavine she proceeded to attempt to "shake down" those upon whom these facts were alleged to reflect. They agreed to sell the whole bunch of evidence for a sum of $75,000, which the victims appeared to accept. The goods were delivered, the money paid, but after the reception of the money Lavine was arrested at the door of the office in which he had received the money. His trial and conviction followed.

There are probably few lower-down crimes in the category than that of blackmail. The attempt to use the fear of exposure of wrongdoing or connection with wrong doing on a victim, and thereby extorting money from him not only is the vilest practice imaginable, and regardless of what the victim has done, is condemned more roundly by society than almost anything of which the victim himself might have been guilty. The district attorney's office in Los Angeles had to try this case twice in order to obtain a conviction, one man holding out in the former trial. In following it up and pursuing it to the end, the district attorney's office performed a distinct service.

Dwight Morrow, we read, sipped a glass of milk at the end of a day's campaigning. From contented Jersey cows, undoubtedly.

FOR A PLACE OF PRIVILEGE

In New York it seems that there is quite a penchant for having one's name last in the telephone book. Many people submit bogus names hoping that theirs will be the last number in the book because that is so easy to look up. Some of the names were "Zzyzyvaras," "Zzyn," and "Zzyx."

The telephone company investigated the various names and rejected the pseudonyms. The last name, which is genuine is: D. Zywoikarta.

There is one step, however, which probably none will take. It is to actually change their name to "Zzyzyvaras," making it genuine, in order to have the last number in the book. If there were anyone so foolish the chances are there would be others just as foolish who would outdo them in getting the last combination of letters anyway. Can you imagine being burdened with the name "Zzyzyvaras," without the privilege of having the last name in the telephone book, or even with the privilege?

Let History Decide! All We Want Is Peace and Good Will

Years and years ago, when most of us were in knee pants, Poultny Bigelow was an accepted writer in some of our best magazines. His subject being travel his writings were quite harmless and always interesting. The fact that he was a college mate of Kaiser Wilhelm II or something like that, was, of course, pretty well advertised, and that helped along.

And then along came the World war. Mr. Bigelow, despite his lifelong friendship with the Kaiser, thought that Wilhelm was responsible for the great international bloodfest, and said so. That, for the time being, was the end of the friendship of the two men in theory—and doubtless in fact if the Kaiser ever learned what Mr. Bigelow thought about the matter.

Now comes Mr. Bigelow with a new idea about Wilhelm's guilt. He has visited the ex-Kaiser in his exile at Doorn and burned the midnight oil with Wilhelm studying documents dealing with the war and what preceded it. Mr. Bigelow says he is not nearly so sure that the Kaiser was responsible and he tells us about the ex-ruler's willingness to have an international court-martial decide just who was responsible.

May God forbid! Doubtless it would be entertaining, but it would be far from beneficial. This war-weary world wants to hear no more about who was guilty and who was not. After the court-martial had sat for a year or two and had rendered a decision probably it would not change anybody's mind anyway.

The war has been over for twelve years. Terrific as the struggle was a great deal of the bitterness between nations has already gone. The victors were chastened quite as severely as the losers and all are willing to forget and forgive. Two hundred years from now historians will decide to their own satisfaction who brought on the war of 1914. Let them. We will not be interested.

Meanwhile, let us have peace on earth and good will toward all men!

Please, Mr. Bigelow, just enjoy your remaining years on earth and let the rest of us do the same.

Music Is Needed In Every City In Country

John Erskine, who is a musician and educator before he is an author, makes a statement about American music which will please patriots and should give hope to many a struggling young musician.

As president of the Julliard School of Music in New York, says he is trying not only to "teach musicianship" but to "decentralize music." He wants to get good musicians "out of the east and the big centers back into their own sections of the country, where they can turn their talents and education to some use."

"There is more musical and perhaps more artistic ability in the United States than anywhere on earth," he declares. "There are musicians all over the country, and they should remain at home or return there after their period of instruction."

He foresees in the future in America, as in Germany, every community of any size having its own modest little orchestra, with groups of excellent musicians gathered in by first-rate conservatories and choral groups, and with thriving opera groups.

Here is quite a different picture from the one often drawn, of a country content with mechanical music and radio. And it is not wholly imaginary. A pretty good start has been made already.

More Truth Than Poetry

RENUNCIATION

Knocked down frame houses are now being sent to the Arctic.

I've given up my Arctic trip;
I never now shall go
To see the sun at midnight dip
Behind a frozen floor.
I'll never see a polar bear
His furtive form reveal,
Nor hear across the snappy air
The love call of the seal.

I yearned throughout my youthful dreams
To go to Baffin Land,
Where, ranged along the glacial seams,
Long rows of igloo stand.
I knew not what an igloo was,
But hungered just the same
To see a lot of them because
They had that funny name.

But now where roams the caribou
And where the bear carouses—
In fact the whole vast Arctic through,
They're building wooden houses,
And where the lemmings roved in bands
Across the gleaming snows,
Will presently be hot dog stands
And modern speakeasy shows.

What is a land of frozen brooks
Are banked with glacial scoria,
If in this day and age it looks
Like Main street in Emporia,
No doubt the mayor would show to me
The band stand in the square;
So Baffin Land I'll never see,
There are no igloos there.

OBVIOUSLY NOT

When we are told that space is limitless the information does not relate to parking space.

Dollar Sign And Counter Sign

By WILLIAM TRUFANT FOSTER and WADDILL CATCHINGS

In the United States women buy at least 80 per cent of all the goods that are bought. They spend over 50 billion dollars a year, reports the United States Bureau of Standards, for food, clothing, shelter and other services alone.

Men enjoy themselves most when they are earning; but women, according to foreign critics, enjoy themselves most when they are yearning, and acquiring the things for which they yearn. Without going into the question of where woman's place is, it must be admitted that she is thoroughly at home in the shop. She buys not only for herself and her children, but as well for her husband, her father, her brothers, and her male cousins.

A research by Dr. H. L. Hollingsworth, Professor in Columbia University, reveals the fact that the only item that men buy entirely by themselves, without consultation with women, is their own collars. And now that men are wearing shirts with attached collars, even that frail hold on independence is slipping.

Men are glad of it. For man is not, either by training or inclination, a shopping animal. However competent he is an industrial purchasing agent, he is not competent as a family purchasing agent.

The result is that women largely determine what is bought, and thereby determine what is made. Thus they direct the labor of 80 per cent of the men and determine which producers are allowed to stay in business.

Women do less shopping merely as a pastime than they used to do. Bridge, golf, radios and automobiles have seen to that. The shopper of today is not "just looking." She expects the merchant to save her time by finding out in advance what goods she will want.

She is prepared to give the dollar-sign. She expects the merchant to be prepared to give the counter-sign.

Thoughts On Modern Life

By GLENN FRANK

THE BIOLOGY OF WAR

The other day I suggested that the geologist is one of the invaluable friends of peace, although he may never figure in anti-war agitations.

I suggested that, as war demands the destruction of mineral resources as a faster and faster rate and on a larger and larger scale, we are fast approaching a time when war will be impractical from the point of view of mineral resources, and that it is the geologist who is compelling the men of the war colleges to see this.

Alongside the geologist stands the biologist as a friend of peace. Several important studies are now under way that should throw new light on the biological effects of war.

Only the biologist can finally tell us with authority whether in modern war mankind loses its worst and preserves its best or loses its best and preserves its worst.

If investigation proves beyond question that war selects for death our best and selects for survival our worst, then society that declines to listen to the guesses of pacifist propagandists may listen to the sober biologist.

We know what war does to the armies engaged, or at least we think we do.

We do not know as accurately as we should what war does to the civil population of the belligerent nations.

And we do not know as accurately as we should what war does to the neutral populations in a gigantic conflict.

We know that big armaments mean high taxes.

We know that high taxes mean high living costs.

We realize with equal clearness what these high living costs do to the marriage and birth rates of our superior stocks?

When expensive peace-time military establishments are maintained, do we know what effect is registered in delayed marriages among those who serve in the armies?

Do we know the ratio of births to deaths in the various biological levels, from mad stocks to good stocks, during war time?

Do we know whether or not injuries, disease, malnutrition, and nervous shocks that follow war affects the germ plasma and thus register their results in future generations?

Do we know whether or not people recover from whatever biological injury may do?

These are some of the questions the biologists are trying to answer, and they may have real effect on war and peace.

OUR CHILDREN

By ANGELO PATRI

CRUEL CHILDREN

Children are cruel without knowing it. They have not the slightest conception of what they mean to their mothers and fathers and so have not the least glimmer of an idea of how they pain them.

As the children grow the parents weave in all sorts of dreams about them. They delight in entering into the children's lives by means of their school work, their vacation plans, their life plans. "We will do this and this," says father, beaming kindly upon his son. "And when you are graduated we'll do this and this."

"Yes," agrees the lad, and the father and mother move along with the boy and the girl, never dreaming of the tragedy just ahead. One day son says, very casually, "I don't believe I'll go to Starry Towers after all. I hear they haven't a very good course there, the masters have changed and, anyway, I think I can do better abroad. I shan't need any help. Dad, you've helped me enough now. I'm going on my own. I've been offered a job over there and I can work and study at the same time. I hope you don't mind?"

Hope we don't mind, when they have smashed the beautiful world we had builded about them and ourselves. Don't need us any more and we so counted on being needed. Going abroad. All set and not a word to us of the plan until it was full-fledged and the ship was waiting at the pier. Don't mind?

With a great effort we clear our throats sufficiently to say, "Why, not at all, son. When do you say you start? So soon? Well, mother will have to know. She'll be wanting to get some things ready."

"I don't need a thing, Dad. I've arranged for all that I'll just hop off in the morning."

No. They don't mean to be cruel. They don't know they are cruel. They are all right. They are driving ahead to get a hold on life just as we did. They are totally unaware of the roots we have set in their lives. They would not understand how we came to set them there anyway. Not until they stand desolate, as we stand before them, not until their own children casually mention that they hop off tomorrow, will they know what they meant to us and what they did to us that morning.

It is very hard to have a daughter say, quite suddenly—it is always suddenly no matter how long deferred—"Mother, I've changed my mind about my work. I've decided I might as well get married now as later. Al has quite a bit saved up and he has a good job as manager in the city. If you and Dad don't mind I'd like to get married next month."

Well, we have no right to feel torn and hurt. We knew that the children must grow up and go away. We always knew it. Better turn to and help them get started. Then, afterward, you can begin planning again. There are the grandchildren. They'll help some. And cheer up. The children are not cruel. And you would not blame them for not understanding something they know nothing about?

WHAT CAUSES THAT?
Of all California's representatives in both Senate and House, Congressman Welch was the only one who voted against the tariff bill on its final passage.

In the matter of his vote on the tariff, Congressman Welch of California would appear to be in a similar attitude to that of the city councilman who said he was "in favor of the ordinance but opposed to its enforcement."

But, bless your heart, Congressman Welch voted with the rest of the California delegation and the Republican majority on the various items of the bill as they were individually considered in the House and for all the conference reports.

When the measure first came out of the House on May 28 last year with rates much higher than the bill just passed and signed Congressman Welch voted for it.

Congressman Welch was at the end, after the measure had been completed and was certain of passage.
